Arlean,

An update on the aromatics petitions--I did receive comments from OGC late last week. In looking at the comments, there did not appear to be any "show stopper" type comments--a few comments will require some revisions to be made to the document but nothing too significant. I expect to have a revised version of the final rule back to OGC in the next day or two and I should likely get a response back from them within a day or two after. I will update you further as things progress.
